This book marks the major exhibition 'David Nash at Kew Gardens' staged in Kew Gardens from 2012 through to April 2013.

Nash has been chopping, chipping and charring wood – not to mention, fissuring and furrowing it – for 40 years now, so his residency among Kew's 14,000 trees appeared to be a match made in ...

David Nash at Kew Gardens will be published to commemorate the major exhibition David Nash A Natural Gallery, opening in June 2012 and running through April 2013, for which the artist will produce and exhibit his sculptures, installations, drawings, and film throughout Kew's remarkable botanical gardens and green spaces, glasshouses, and ...

Three magnificent figures rise as high as the trees in a clearing at Kew Gardens. Everyone stops to stare. Towering above our heads, strength coursing through their limbs, they appear to forge ...

A few images of sculptures by David Nash currently on display at Kew Gardens. Sculptures, drawings and film exhibits can be found throughout the gardens, glass houses and exhibition spaces. The exhibition runs until March 2013. For more information please see Kew Gardens website.

Nash is artist in residence at Kew for a year. His studio is in north Wales, so he has moved into a house in the gardens with his family, and is often out at work by 6am.

On a recent visit to Kew Gardens in London (primarily to check out the Xstrata Treetop Walkway and catch some autumn colour), I was really pleased to also get to see the work of David Nash in the Gardens.

I'm going to have to go back to Kew Gardens to find more of the sculptures by David Nash in his exhibition of sculpture David Nash at Kew - A Natural Gallery.
