A group of volunteer gardeners who plant victorian-era gardens in cradle graves at the National Historic Landmark Cemetery. Information about The Grave Gardeners, a program of The Woodlands Trust for Historic Preservation in Philadelphia, PA.

The result is a generation of gated, astonishing landscapes lying comfortably in the hearts of major American cities, ready for their comeback. REOPENING THE GATES If you had walked up to the entrance of Greenwood Cemetery in Brooklyn as recently as the 1990s, unless you were there to leave flowers with a loved one, you were more or less turned away, says cemetery president Richard Moylan.

Gardening is a healthy, stimulating physical activity that can be enjoyed by older people. The garden, equipment and tools can all be modified to suit the needs of older people. Gardening increases levels of physical activity, and maintains mobility and flexibility.
