I Want A Baby, He Doesn't How Both Partners Can Make The Right Decision At The Right Time

It is commonly acknowledged that men and women argue more about money, sex and childrearing than anything else. Yet while there are many books on those important issues, there isn't a book available on a fourth major issue that is often more emotionally charged than the first three: what to do when the woman wants a baby and the man doesn't.

I Want a Baby, He Doesn't—from a woman who has personally experienced, and mutually resolved, this issue with her husband and a licensed marital therapist—advises couples on how to work with each other to reach the best possible resolution without destroying the relationship.

Deciding to have a baby is a big decision; but what happens when you're ready for a new addition to the family and your partner isn't? Read on for tips on how to cope with this seemingly irresolvable relationship problem.

My partner is an only child, had a miserable childhood and thought for a long time that he doesn't want kids at all. Then we met and had child 1 pretty soon. Child 1 was an extremely demanding baby – cried a lot and didn't sleep. I was so exhausted and sometimes thought that I would never dare to try to have another one.
